China all in one solar system in Colombia

Overview

China's Small and Medium Business Corporation (CVCC) wants to "turn Colombia into the first Chinese warehouse in America" with its Sol de Oriente project. The project, which has yet to be approved, includes a tax-free trade zone with 25,000 warehouses, a.

The only approved port project in Uraba is the Antioquia Port, which is being constructed near the banana plantations of the family of Governor Anibal Gaviria, which has all but monopolized the regional economy. The Antioquia Port received credit from, among.

The Uraba ports and highways also allow the export of gold extracted by Chinese mining company Zijin Mining Gold from its mine in Buritica.

The elites from Antioquia and Chocohave also been promoting the construction of a port in the Gulf of Tribuga, which would create a direct naval route between Uraba and China. The.

The China Harbour Engineering Company (CHEC) and four local companies won the 2015 bid to build a highway to connect Colombia's second largest city Medellinto the ports in Uraba.

Does Trina Solar have solar panels in Colombia?

According to Ambiente y Sociedad, this company had been granted projects to install solar panels in at least four of Colombia's 32 provinces. Trina Solar's Colombian subsidiary told the NGO in 2021 that the company never received a single order and wasn't aspiring to obtain one.

Why does China want to expand its influence in Colombia?

Companies controlled by China's authoritarian government have been granted critical infrastructure projects in Colombia and plan to expand their influence. The Chinese government's increased stakes in Colombia are the result of trade deals made with Bogota between 2008 and 2019, and Beijing's growing imperial ambitions.

How many Chinese citizens entered Colombia in 2019?

According to migration authorities, 2,436 Chinese citizens entered Colombia in 2019. “To build the highway,” said El Colombiano. Road sign at the Autopistas Al Mar 2 site. (Image: El Colombiano) The newspaper said that CHEC had constructed three labor camps in Dabeiba. Radio station Caracol reported another labor camp in Mutata.

Will Colombia become the first Chinese warehouse in America?

China’s Small and Medium Business Corporation (CVCC) wants to “turn Colombia into the first Chinese warehouse in America” with its Sol de Oriente project. The project, which has yet to be approved, includes a tax-free trade zone with 25,000 warehouses, a seaport and an airport on the Caribbean coast.

Why did Chinese workers travel to Colombia?

Since this visit, foreign direct investment from the Asian giant skyrocketed and thousands of Chinese workers traveled to Colombia allegedly to work on Chinese projects. Bogota and Beijing have been secretive about the extent Chinese state companies gained control over Colombia’s critical infrastructure.

Who are the Chinese players in Colombia?

Another major Chinese player in Colombia is the China Three Gorges Corporations, which wants to construct three hydroelectric dams in the Atrato River in the western Choco province with a Portuguese energy company. Their consortium, Hydro Global Investment Limited, has said that the dams would generate 170.9 megawatt in the jungle region.
