What are the components of a base station?

Power Supply: The power source provides the electrical energy to base station elements. It often features auxiliary power supply mechanisms that guarantee operation in case of lost or interrupted electricity, during blackouts. Baseband Processor: The baseband processor is responsible for the processing of the digital signals.

Do APs support power supply?

APs support power supply via PoE or DC power adapters. A few types of APs support only one power supply mode. For details, query the specifications in the hardware center on Info-Finder (Enterprise Network or Carrier). In most indoor scenarios, APs can use PoE power supply, which offers the following advantages:.

Do I need to ground an AP?

Connecting AP to the power source using a very long or non-certified cable can result in higher power draw at the power source. When using external or industrial APs, it is very important to ground them. Not properly grounding the AP can result in Refer to the AP deployment guides for further information.

Can APs use PoE power supply?

In most indoor scenarios, APs can use PoE power supply, which offers the following advantages: Network cables for data transmission can be reused for supplying power to APs, eliminating the need of additional and therefore reducing construction costs. No additional power adapter is required, reducing the investment.

Do all APs have the same power draw?

Not all APs from the same series have the same power draw. For example, 1562i can draw up to 7 watts more than the 1562d version. Connecting AP to the power source using a very long or non-certified cable can result in higher power draw at the power source. When using external or industrial APs, it is very important to ground them.

Does AP support UPOE+?

As of writing this article, no AP is capable of fully utilizing UPoE+ standard (802.3bt), so it will not be included in the table. This table assumes that no PoE passthrough (PoE Out) is being used. Note: Unless APs are provided full power they require, they will show up with “Low/Medium Power” in Wireless Controller Web interface. Table 3.
