

Wind power generation for communication base stations is exempted from environmental assessment

Test certification

Overview

Are wind projects subject to an environmental assessment?

Under the current rules, wind projects generating more than 50 megawatts of power or involving 15 or more turbines are subject to an environmental assessment, according to the B.C. Environment Ministry.

Which solar power projects are exempt from EC & CTE?

The Ministry of Environment, Forests, and Climate Change (MoEFCC) has exempted solar module manufacturing units, solar power projects, wind power projects, and mini hydel power projects less than 25 MW from obtaining both Environmental Clearance (EC) and Consent to Establish (CTE).

Will BC wind projects be exempt from environmental assessment?

B.C. Energy Minister Adrian Dix says all future wind projects in the province will be exempt from environmental assessment while “ensuring that First Nations’ interests and environmental mitigation are protected and maintained.” Add content to the Apple News only block.

Who is exempted from EC & CTE?

Ministry of Environment, Forest and Climate Change (MoEFCC) has exempted solar module manufacturing units, solar power generation projects, wind power projects and mini hydel power projects less than 25 MW from obtaining dual compliance of Environmental Clearance (EC) and Consent to Establish (CTE) for setting up of new industries.

How will BC wind power projects be assessed & approved?

In place of assessments conducted by the B.C. Environmental Assessment Office, wind power projects will now be assessed and approved via a “one window permitting approach” overseen by the Ministry of Water, Land and Resource Stewardship, with input from BC Hydro, according to a press release from the province.

Should Alberta exempt wind projects from environmental assessments?

Exempting wind projects from environmental assessments will help the province capitalize on the consequences of the Alberta government's decision to heavily restrict the industry, according to B.C. Premier David Eby. Photo: Leah Hennel / The Narwhal
